

UNLV Postgame Notes

-The 35 points scored in the first half tied for the most by UNLV vs. a Mountain West opponent. The Rebels also scored 35 before halftime vs. Wyoming in 2002 and at New Mexico in 2013.

-UNLV safety Chauncey Scissum, who transferred to UNLV as a graduate student this summer, had his team-leading second interception of the season to thwart the Spartans' opening drive of the third quarter.

-The 28-point win tied for the second-biggest victory by UNLV over any conference opponent. The Rebels also won by 28 over New Mexico in 2010 and San Diego State in 2001. The program record is a 35-point victory over the Lobos in 2010

-UNLV's previous largest win over SJSU came in 1984 when it won by 15 (30-15)

-UNLV sophomore receiver Brandon Presley scored his first touchdown since 2015 when he took a short pass down the sidelines for a 44-yarder into the end zone. Presley received a medical redshirt in 2016 after suffering an injury in the season opener

-UNLV improved to 13-23 all-time in conference openers and 6-13 in the MW

-The Rebels notched a second win through four games for only the second time in the last eight years and first time since 2013

-Lexington Thomas rushed for his eighth and ninth touchdowns of the season and 19th and 20th of his career, which ties him with quarterback Glenn Carano (1973-76) and running back Michael Morton (1978-81), who both ran for 20 in the Scarlet & Gray.
